

FALL SEMINAR 2010

Join CASI and Sharon Toji from

for a 3-hour continuing education seminar on access signage.

Sharon Toji is the founder of Access Communications, a consulting company with a specialty in accessible wayfinding and signage design. Sharon is the author of numerous trade articles on accessible signage and the manual "Signs and the ADA". She is a member of the ANSI Signage Task Force, and one of the principal authors of the signage section in the ANSI A117.1-1998 standard, which is the basis for the work of the ADAAG Advisory Review Committee. Sharon also represented the International Sign Association on the ADAAG Advisory Review Subcommittee on Communication, and worked on the scoping of the ADA/ABA Guidelines regarding access signage. Sharon is presently a member of the Access Advisory Committee of the California State Building Standards Commission.

At this seminar you will learn:

- How accessible signage is divided into categories
- An understanding of the "universal" accessible signage rules
- An understanding of the key elements in an accessible signage and wayfinding system
- How to detect common errors in signage design and fabrication that affect accessibility

September 24 in Southern California

October 1 in Northern California

9 am to Noon - Before the CASI General Meeting

CASI members $35

Non-members $85

Discounts for non-members from the same office - 3 people minimum - $65 per person

Limited Seating ▪ No Refunds ▪ Prepayment required online at CASInstitute.org

C A S I

CERTIFIED ACCESS SPECIALIST INSTITUTE

CONTINUING EDUCATION SERIES

Seminar information and documentation provided for self-submission for continuing education credit